"We continue to see a variety of needs in the communities we serve, from North Platte to Council Bluffs" said Dawn Gonzales, vice president, community relations at Centris. "Our committee of five senior leaders reads and scores each application using a rubric that focuses on our community pillars of financial education, health and human services and community betterment. While time consuming, the application review process really allows us to learn about many nonprofits that we may never get to know through traditional means. We are excited about this year's selection and look forward to seeing the impact that these grants will make throughout Nebraska and western Iowa," she said.

Centris will continue its community grant program with applications available in August 2025. More information will be available on their website at centrisfcu.org.
